On September 11, 2001, New York City was shaken to its core when two jet airliners crashed into the twin towers of the World Trade Center. In the wake of the chaos, New York-based Irish photographer Nicola McClean responded in the only way she knew how; she picked up her camera and took to the streets to try and capture the confusion and panic that surrounded her. In 2011, McClean brings her stunning collection of images to the public for the first time. The spectator will be able to discover, through Nicola's eyes, the startling aftermath of one of the most tragic events in American history -- seeing what she saw, hearing the stories she heard and meeting the people she met, particularly the heroic men and women of the New York City Emergency Services.
